Time Travelling to the Past

Om led Ben to her special place. It was a cave. She lit a torch and they went inside. The cave was eerie and damp. Ben went further in and was admiring the extraordinary cave paintings. Ben's spear was very sharp but Om trusted him with it. Om started to draw using berries, leaves and water to blend. Ben saw a bed but he thought it would be too uncomfortable. Ben saw something out of the corner of his eye. What could it be? Ben soon realised that what he saw was a trapdoor. Om followed Ben into the trapdoor and they soon realised that they were falling. Down, down, down....

They were soon in the Bronze Age (only Ben thought this). Om hurt her arm when falling. Luckily, the people had a bandage made from wool and they put it on her arm. They were both hungry but Om didn't know what the food was (it was a carrot).

Meanwhile, back at Om's house, everyone was worried that they were both lost. Om was looking around until she found a strange house. Ben also thought it was strange. The people asked Om why she was carrying a torch at daytime. This place still had Om's cave. Ben was still wondering how they got there. He was sure they were in the Bronze Age because they were carrying bronze tools. They had to get out of there and fast or they might get trapped there forever!

They ran and ran until they thought they found the door but it wasn't the right one. Then they found a random door in the middle of a forest. They jumped through and it was the right door! They found the tribe and they had a party. Ben got new clothes that the tribe gave him.

They celebrated with delicious reindeer meat, fish and berries. Ben said goodbye to Om and wandered off until he found a sign. The sign said 'random door behind this sign'. Ben walked through the door and was back home. When he told his mum about it, she didn't believe him. It was a very, very big secret but it was definitely true.
