

Stig of the Dump and the Relocation

Chapter one

Barney was walking in the warm, cloudless evening in the summer and went inside Stig's cave. As he walked through the damp, eerie hallways and dark, frightening corridors, he felt truly lost.

When he finally reached Stig's area there was only time to prepare a bed and roast a marshmallow over a crackling hot fire because Stig was sleeping.

Halfway through the night, Barney was woken by a rumbly strange sound. Barney shook Stig awake and hurriedly rushed out. What he saw made his face turn pale. Twenty bears or more were surrounding the cave. Barney and Stig ran, their feet pounding on the sodden slippery earth but Stig slipped over a dull grey rock and Barney tumbled over him. The bear raised his paw, ready to strike. Barney rolled over, pulling Stig with him and the bear missed by a whisker. The group, seemingly angry because it missed tore it apart into pieces allowing Stig and Barney to slip away under the cover of darkness.

The next morning, they started to help Stig relocate to another cave. While dusk was spreading, they heard an imposing voice. "Fetch the axe!" and the Snargets slid down the slope. One raised his sharp menacing axe. Stig jumped as if in slow motion. The Snarget lowered his axe. Then all of a sudden Stig pushed it away! He landed with a thud and the Snargets ran away.

Stig and Barney walked and got to boggy ground. They slowly walked across but Stig still fell in. Barney grabbed his hand and eventually Barney saved his life!

After a lot of slowly walking on small rocks, they finally got to the cave and Stig moved in.

The End.
